

FOI Information Statement 2014

Freedom of Information statement

The Freedom of Information Act 1992 ("FOI Act") was established in order to enhance the public's participation in government and increase the accountability of State and local governments.

In creating a right of public access to government documents, the FOI Act requires agencies such as Perth Zoo to make available details about the kind of documents it holds and provide information as to how they can be accessed.

Along with enabling the public to understand how government and its agencies operate, the FOI Act allows people to obtain and seek amendment to personal information about themselves if they feel what is held on the public record is inaccurate, incomplete, out of date or misleading" (section 45 of the FOI Act).

In order to abide by the FOI Act, it is the Perth Zoo's aim to make information available to members of the public promptly and for the least possible cost. Aside from documents, such as the Annual Report, which are freely available to the public, the Perth Zoo will, wherever possible, attempt to provide information to applicants outside of the FOI process.

Freedom of Information Requests

The FOI Act recognises two kinds of requests for access to information, personal information and non-personal information. Personal information is defined as "information or an opinion, whether true or not, and whether recorded in a material form or not, about an individual, whether living or dead" (Clause 3, Schedule 1 of the FOI Act). This includes, but is not limited to, information from which the identity of an individual is apparent or can reasonably be ascertained (i.e. names or contact details).

Non-personal information is defined as information concerning people other than the FOI access applicant. This also includes, but is not limited to, information, opinions, contact details or genetic information.

Freedom of Information Applications

Under section 12 of the FOI Act, FOI applications must

- be in writing
- give enough information so that the requested document can be identified
- give an Australian address to which notices can be sent
- be lodged at the agency together with the application fee (if required).

Applicants can create their own FOI application or download the Perth Zoo Application Form.

All applications must be made in writing and clearly demonstrate how or why the Perth Zoo's records are "inaccurate, incomplete, out of date or misleading" (section 46 of the FOI Act).

As with an FOI application, the Perth Zoo will inform the applicant of its decision and reasoning, via a Notice of Decision. If the Perth Zoo decides to amend the applicant's personal information, it will usually be done via altering the record, or adding a further note in relation to the record. The FOI Act also provides applicants with the right to appeal an amendment decision made by the Perth Zoo, via an internal and external review process.
